One day in a faraway land lived a Demicorn named Beatrice. She was thirteen at the time and hanging out with her Demogorgon friends. Then suddenly her mom came out waving a letter in the air, so she went rushing towards it. She grabbed the letter from her mom's hands and went back to her friends to read it with them. It read

"Hello Beatrice, we have assigned you to an especially important mission. You must go to earth to see their actions and try to fit in because we have become overpopulated, and we must find another place to live. It will only be for a year so after that you will have to come back. We have figured that because you are a teenager it will be easier for you to do this mission. We are counting on you. From Jemma."

Beatrice screamed in excitement. When she finished reading it, she went straight to packing for the mission. She first asked her mom what she thought was best to pack. Then she packed some stuff she thought was good.

She went to the main castle where Jemma the leader of the Demogorgon's live. Jemma told her to say bye to everyone she wanted to because she was leaving soon. She went to say bye to her friends, then her mom and then she went to the graveyard to say goodbye to her dad. She then went back to Jemma's office.

"Go into the space shuttle it will take you to earth and remember your mission" Jemma said. So that was exactly what Beatrice did.

Beatrice asked, "Is earth far away?"

Jemma responded, "sort of".

Beatrice took off in the space shuttle. When she got to earth it was like a meteorite just hit earth, so everyone gathered around it. When Beatrice came out of the space shuttle everyone stared in disgust. She felt so different and sad. She came to introduce herself and put her hand out. The people there all walked back to get away. Then they turned around and ran.

She felt out of place, she ran after them saying “I mean no harm I am here on a mission to learn the human ways". Then she heard a voice she turned around to see a dog talking to her. She thought she would never see anything like this. Beatrice asked, “Do all dogs here talk they certainly don’t from where I'm from?”.

The dog responded, “No, you’re the only one who has ever heard me.”

“Oh, so I have another question does everyone act this way here because I'm starting to think that I am scary, where I'm from I am the prettiest one?”.

The dog took a small moment to think about the question. He thought for a while longer then responded with a “They are like this to new people, but I think you are beautiful”.

“Ah thank you” Beatrice replied. The dog then went to show Beatrice a place that she could stay. She stayed there examining the human life below. She noticed that they were very sassy, bossy, and all sorts of stuff. When she had all the information that she needed she went out bought the clothes that they used and started to practice how they acted.

When she felt she was ready she set out to go to school for the first time and once the people started to get to know her better, she made some new friends. Her and her friends hung out every weekend Beatrice was a straight A’s student.

Now Beatrice gathered even more information than up on the hill. She of course kept it a secret so she wouldn’t make them feel used because she had friends back at home. Whenever she thought of that she felt different because with her friends at home she was the same as them. Beatrice was excited at first to meet a new species but now she felt sad because she missed home.

The end of the one year came by so she told all her friends she was going back home. When she got home, she was run over by all her friends, she was as happy to see them as they were to see her. Then Jemma came rushing over to ask Beatrice to tell her all about it. On the way to Jemma's office Beatrice was telling her that the people on earth were bossy and sassy and dressed like a total weirdo.

Then Beatrice talking about it started to miss earth so she asked Jemma “can I go back to earth to make sure of all of this that I am saying just one more year, please”.

“Yes, but your friends will miss you make sure to tell them to see if they are okay with this because to me you can stay for as long as you want” Jemma replied then smiled So, she went to ask her friends and they were sad that she was leaving again but they were fine with it if that was what she wanted. So again, she set off on the space shuttle and the same thing happened except this time no one stared in disgust ran off because they already knew her and were nice to her.

She then packed for another day of school, but it was a special day. It was Beatrice's birthday. When she told her friends they immediately told the teacher about the birthday and during class they sang happy birthday to her, and she got so embarrassed but also happy because she didn’t get to spend it with her other friends and family but at least she got to spend it with her friends on earth.

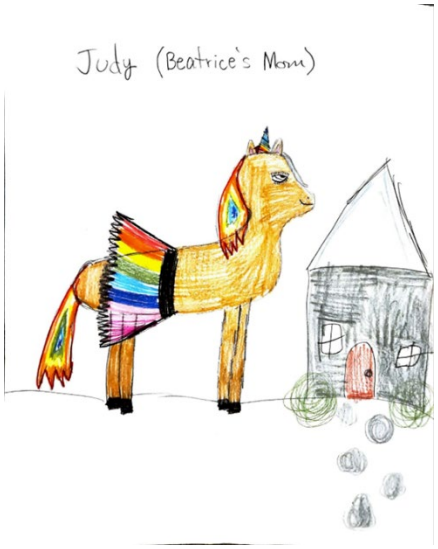
Another year passed by, and Beatrice was excited to go back home but she knew she would miss her friends on earth, so she said her final goodbyes at set off back home. When she safely landed again all her friends ran over her and Jemma rushed to her suspiciously except this time Jemma asked, "Was everything that you said true".

And Beatrice said, "yes everything was very true, but they are also very nice and I think we should all go there one day"

then Jemma shouted "NOO YOU CAN'T" why not they all said in shock because they are very dangerous she said, "Beatrice has been lying to us all we must banish her and she went to the terrible place with the humans so she must be dangerous too"

no Beatrice said they're not dangerous at all then Jemma snapped her fingers and her guards took Beatrice and put her in the space shuttle and she blasted off to Earth and Jemma had an evil grin on her face and then told her guards to take every last magical thing on the planet.


Then all you could see seconds later was Beatrice passed out on the floor of the ship only because she had no more powers inside of her. 2 hours later she woke up...
